Author: Scrappy Doe	Assignment: Reserach Paper	Print version:  Direct link

Below this text are two buttons: "Highlight All" and "Unhighlight All". A single source is listed with a magnifying glass icon and a percentage: "1  <http://teach.ucf.edu/design-of-an-online-course/development>

The "Paper Text" section follows, containing the student's submission text. A blue highlight is applied to a paragraph of text, with a magnifying glass icon and a percentage next to it: "1  A good axiom to follow when developing an online course is to begin with the end in mind. The course goal(s) and learning objectives you wrote and envisioned in the first two phases should guide your decisions as you develop the instructional events to help students successfully achieve the desired course outcomes. In general, developing an effective online course requires identifying and creating activities and core content."
